- 2) Child Sex Trafficking on the Internet- "Selling the Girl Next Door" Documentary

Mar 19, 2012 => CNN's Amber Lyon Investigates Internet Child Sex Trafficking in America

Selling the Girl Next Door takes viewers into the world of underage American girls caught up in the violent sex trade. Thousands of girls under the age of 18 are ensnared into lives of prostitution annually, according to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children. Many are runaways or "throwaways" trapped in "the oldest profession" by pimps who sell them using modern sales and marketing techniques, including the online classified website Backpage.com.

In a statement dated December 28, 2011 Backpage.com said it is "committed to preventing those who are intent on misusing the site for illegal purposes." Click on the following link to read an up-to-date list of the safety measures backpage.com says it is taking <http://i.cdn.turner.com/cnn/2011/imag...>

In a year-long investigation, CNN correspondent Amber Lyon reveals the devastating realities of the business of underage sex -- speaking to a young teen runaway sold online from a Las Vegas hotel, the men that obsessively seek Internet sex connections, and women long into careers as sex workers who were trafficked as teens or children.

Along the way, Lyon interviews well-known brothel owner Dennis Hof. Hof's sex workers describe their own dark pasts and the frightening underworld of underage sex trafficking.

Lyon also goes undercover herself, posting an online ad, and taking calls from solicitors -- and Internet pimps -- to understand more about how girls are victimized by sex traffickers.

An interactive map on CNN.com shares Lyon's coast-to-coast journey -- from Maryland, Missouri, Tennessee and Nevada -- trailing runaways, finding their families, meeting sex workers, and visiting a "Johns' school" where convicted solicitors are forced to face the social and criminal consequences of their actions.

We have schools in our Tri-County area that just closed and one in KULM because they built a new school. We think we can convert class rooms into living quarters for young boys or young girls, or for mostly young women rebuilding their lives from the sex slavery trade or from trafficking. Apartment for them for six months or for two years to live in to re-build their lives. Some take longer to re-build their value than others. We think the monthly cost per person will be at $5,000 each for 25 people. Would you consider donating $1 per month for 25 people and pledge this (not give any funds yet but later) to this cause. Maybe could pledge a onetime donation to get the school into living condition with rooms divided and carpet on the floors, etc.? 7) Child sex trafficking in America | Nacole | TEDxRainier

Jan 22, 2014 = > Child sex trafficking is a form of modern day slavery, and according the Department of Justice, human trafficking is one of the fastest growing criminal enterprise. Nacole, a mother of four, shares her story about her family's painful experience with this issue, the professional help they found and the steps we can take to ensure that this does not continue.

Nacole lives in the southwest with her husband of 20 years and they have 4 children and 3 grandchildren. Nacole works as the Director of a local Preschool. She became an influential advocate fighting to prevent child exploitation in 2010 when her youngest daughter became a victim to this horrible crime. She has helped to get several bills passed in the state of Washington that deal with this crime and worked with Seattle's Mayor to try to prevent the use of online sites to sell children as 'escorts.'

This talk was given November 9, 2013 in Seattle at TEDxRainier, a local TEDx event, produced independently of the TED Conferences.

20) Human Trafficking: Modern-day Slavery in America

Dec 3, 2010 = > Newark, New Jersey (CNN) -- They arrived in the United States from West Africa, young girls held against their will and forced to work for hours on end. But this time, it didn't happen hundreds of years ago.

Nicole's journey started in 2002, when she was barely 12, in her small village in western Ghana. She and about 20 other girls were held in plain sight, but always under the watchful eyes of their captors.

"It was like being trapped, like being in a cage," said "Nicole," now 19. CNN agreed not to use her real name.

"I always have to behave, behave, behave, and behave. No freedom at all."

The girls' families sent them to the United States after being assured they would receive a better education.

But once they arrived, they were forced to work in hair braiding shops across the Newark area -- just a short drive from New York City, right in the shadow of the Statue of Liberty.

The girls, who are now young women, have never spoken publicly before, until now.

23) Teens as Young as 13 Rescued From Super Bowl Sex Trafficking

Feb 5, 2014 => Sixteen teenagers ranging in age from 13 to 17 were recovered by law enforcement in a crackdown on child trafficking surrounding the Super Bowl last weekend. The FBI said the teens included high school students and young people reported missing by their families.

"It is the most significant operation we've had around a big event," Michael Osborne of the FBI's Violent Crimes Against Children Unit told ABC News. "This is the most recoveries we've had at one time."

Officials said the vast majority of the rescued teens were very young girls.

Osborne said he calls taking the young people off the street "recoveries," because the children are not charged.

In child exploitation cases like this, law enforcement officials said operations are designed to remove the young victims from a life of sexual exploitation and abuse.

"These recoveries are victim-focused," Osborn said. "Many times these young people are kept in this life by pimps using sexual, physical and emotional abuse."

The law enforcement effort to help the young victims goes well beyond providing overnight food, clothing and shelter, Osborne said. Over the course of the operation, the FBI's victim specialists' provided 70 women and children referrals to health care facilities, shelters, and other programs.

Osborne said the FBI works with social service specialists to provide for the long-term needs of the victims as well.

"We provide everything we can to try to pull them out of their situation, like education information and family counseling," Osborne said. The family counseling, he explained, is needed because many of the young girls who end up being exploited are runaways. "We know there is a very close correlation between runaway girls and prostitution."

What is striking in many cases, he said, is that the young victims themselves don't think they deserve the help. "They don't think they are worth saving," Osborne said. "Sometimes we are the only people in their lives who haven't given up on them."

The crackdown also identified and arrested 45 pimps and their associates. The arrests came in New York, New Jersey and in Connecticut in the days leading up to the Super Bowl.

Osborne said the FBI teamed with state and local law enforcement to develop intelligence about the movement of pimps and prostitutes into the vicinity of the Super Bowl, as they do with any big event, like a big game or convention.

That's because pimps and "facilitators" move girls around from state to state to find a large gathering of potential customers.

"High-profile special events, which draw large crowds, have become lucrative opportunities for child prostitution criminal enterprises," said Ron Hosko, assistant director of the FBI's Criminal Investigative Division. "The FBI and our partners remain committed to stopping this cycle of victimization and putting those who try to profit from this type of criminal activity behind bars."

Osborne said many times, prostitutes are not walking the streets anymore, but rather their services are offered on internet sites by their pimps.

"No doubt about it, we had a lot of internet activity in the past week," Osborne said.

32) Trafficking of Children in the United States: Documentary Film

Jun 30, 2012 = > Trafficking of children is a form of human trafficking and is defined as the "recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, and/or receipt" of a child for the purpose of exploitation.

Though statistics regarding the magnitude of child trafficking are difficult to obtain, the International Labor Organization estimates that 1.2 million children are trafficked each year.

The trafficking of children has been internationally recognized as a major human rights violation, one that exists in every region of the world.

Yet, it is only within the past decade that the prevalence and ramifications of this practice have risen to international prominence, due to a dramatic increase in research and public action. A variety of potential solutions have accordingly been suggested and implemented, which can be categorized as four types of action: broad protection, prevention, law enforcement, and victim assistance. Major international documents regarding child trafficking include the 1989 U.N. Convention on the Rights of the Child, the 1999 I.L.O. Worst Forms of Child Labor Convention, and the 2000 U.N. Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children.

Commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC) constitutes a form of coercion and violence against children and amounts to forced labor and a contemporary form of slavery.

A declaration of the World Congress against Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children, held in Stockholm in 1996, defined CSEC as: 'sexual abuse by the adult and remuneration in cash or kind to the child or a third person or persons. The child is treated as a sexual object and as a commercial object.'

CSEC includes the prostitution of children, child pornography, child sex tourism and other forms of transactional sex where a child engages in sexual activities to have key needs fulfilled, such as food, shelter or access to education.

It includes forms of transactional sex where the sexual abuse of children is not stopped or reported by household members, due to benefits derived by the household from the perpetrator. CSEC also potentially includes arranged marriages involving children under the age of 18 years, where the child has not freely consented to marriage and where the child is sexually abused.

Prostitution of children under the age of 18 years, child pornography and the (often related) sale and trafficking of children are often considered to be crimes of violence against children. They are considered to be forms of economic exploitation akin to forced labor or slavery.

Such children often suffer irreparable damage to their physical and mental health. They face early pregnancy and risk sexually transmitted diseases, particularly AIDS. They are often inadequately protected by the law and may be treated as criminals.

Child trafficking and CSEC sometimes overlap. On the one hand, children who are trafficked are often trafficked for the purposes of CSEC. However, not all trafficked children are trafficked for these purposes.

Further, even if some of the children trafficked for other forms of work are subsequently sexually abused at work, this does not necessarily constitute CSEC. On the other hand, according to the U.S. Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000, the definition of Severe Forms of Trafficking in Persons includes any commercial sex act performed by a person under the age of 18. This means that any minor who is commercially sexually exploited is defined as a trafficking victim, whether or not movement has taken place. CSEC is also part of, but distinct from, child abuse, or even child sexual abuse. Child rape, for example, will not usually constitute CSEC. Neither will domestic violence.

Although CSEC is considered as child labor, and indeed one of the worst forms of child labor, in terms of international conventions, in legislation, policy and programmatic terms, CSEC is often treated as a form of child abuse or a crime.

34) Children for sale: Sex traffickers targeting Americans

May 17, 2012 => When people speak about the sex trafficking market, experts say it not surprising to hear about places like Thailand, India, some European countries and even Mexico.

"It's like this underworld activity that most Americans just don't realize," Jenny Clark, associate professor at South Texas College in McAllen, said.

Experts on the human and sex trafficking markets gathered for a conference in McAllen, to discuss the multimillion dollar, international industry, that's quickly spreading to new markets, including right here in the Rio Grande Valley.

"In my mind it was always in the far east, in the Middle East, maybe in Africa but certainly not in the developed nations and not in our country," Family Crisis Center Executive Director Brenda Heredia said. "Much to our horror it is - it is a reality here in the United States and here in the Valley."

Heredia said she was alerted by the FBI recently, that sex traffickers are making bold moves. They are scouting middle and elementary schools, looking for their victims.

American born children that sex traffickers are mostly looking for, are children with low self-esteem, experts said.

But this market is no child's play - sex trafficking is a lucrative business.

It's estimated these criminals make hundreds of thousands, if not millions of dollars off each sex victim.

"One victim of sex trafficking in one day services as many as 50 men -- 50!" Heredia said.

"That tells you, over the course of a week, hundreds of people are taking advantage of this."

If one sex victim services 50 clients per day, and charges a minimum of $50 dollars per client, the victim could service up to 350 clients per week. That would translate to a minimum of $17,000.

Heredia also said criminals are looking to get anywhere from 10 to 15 years of service out of each victim.

That means from just one sex victim, traffickers can make anywhere from $8.4 million to $12.6 million, over the course of 10 to 15 years.

Getting the most bank out of each victim is one of the reasons, Heredia said, the average age of sex trafficking victims has drastically decreased.

"We're talking 12, 13, 14, 15 years of age," Heredia said. "The age now for average sex trafficking victims is now 12 years of age! If you can easily get a child, think about that, it's (their) investment - it's more long term now. (They've) got 10 to 15 good years that (they) will be making money on this individual - not so with older ones."

Sex traffickers are subtle in luring children, they don't just snatch children from the streets, Heredia said. Instead, they methodically lure and "groom" them using the same techniques as child predators.

"They'll befriend them say, 'would you like to go get a hamburger, can in give you this present?'" Heredia said.

It could take just days or months to spot the child they want, experts said, but once they find that vulnerable victim, sex traffickers move in fast.

"It takes within 24 to 48 hours of a young girl running away from home for a pimp to approach her -- literally," Clark said. "And that sort of figure is really startling."

Common spots where sex traffickers like to make fast and easy money are truck stops, Clark added.

"If you drive from (the Valley) to Houston, and you stop at any of the truck stops at night, you see young girls all the time," Clark said. "In fact, if you look at the truck drivers, they often have bumper stickers that say 'no lot lizards.'"

I've interviewed some truck drivers and they (tell me) things like, 'I go and get a cup of coffee and I come back to my truck into my cabin, and literally there's a young girl sitting next to me.' One truck driver said, 'you know you're like about 12 years old, go home!'" Clark said.

Heredia said several years ago, she dealt with two American girls that came from middle class, average families who ended up as sex trafficking victims.

She said they were from Texas, not far from the Valley, and made their money at truck stops for about two years.

"A young girl who was over 18 wanted to get away from home - wanted to get away and go to the big city so she ran away," Heredia said. "She was hitch hiking so within 24 hours of her running away, somebody who picked her up bought her a meal.. (and) bought her new clothes, very seductive clothing," Heredia said.

In return, Heredia said, the pimp forced the girl to pay him back for the food and clothes by working as a prostitute at truck stops.

Of the three cases of Texas children lured into sex trafficking - which were from Houston, Austin and San Antonio - Heredia said she knows of just one being rescued.

Clark and Heredia agree that parental vigilance over their children's behavior and activities, especially on the Internet, is what could make the difference in preventing them from becoming a sex trafficking victims.

"When there is a dollar to be made," Heredia said. "The traffickers will move in and take advantage."

Mar 30, 2015 => As the fastest growing illegal business in the world, human trafficking has profound influences here in the United States. Through sympathetic understanding and awareness, both socially & legally, the average American can positively impact what has become the worst human right violation, slavery.

Ryan Brooks is a third year law student at Rutgers School of Law – Newark.

His academic focus, both as an undergraduate and law student, has been international law, legal and political theory, and global policy. Ryan recently worked for the Rutgers International Human Rights Clinic, with a specific focus on issues pertaining to human trafficking.

Mr. Brooks is currently pursuing positions as an international legal consultant. He is currently a J. D. Candidate at Rutgers School of Law-Newark.

37) SIGNS A DEMON IS ATTACKING YOU

May 23, 2016 => There has been a collective naivety where people believe these entities are fake, imaginary or are created through the subconscious mind -but I can tell you through many client's experiences as well as my own they are VERY real. These things are sharp in knowledge with highly advanced psychic abilities that all people should be aware of for good cause. The other common misconception is Demons are only attracted to those that are a part of the occult or pagan beliefs but this again is another false idealistic view. Demons become attracted to anyone whether you're a Bible thumper or an atheist with no faith in anything. These dark entities have an agenda and that agenda is the human race. Here you can learn how to spot their behaviors if - God forbid, you find yourself possibly being terrorized by them.

I'm a firm believer that knowledge is power and with this information you will acquire helpful tips and steps in how to keep these things at bay. Watching this won't attract them so don't worry on that as long as you don't go hunting them down of course. (If you are not a Christian you don't have to worry, he has you.)

Love and Light to you always. If you feel you are having issues with something dark like these please contact me and I will do what I can to help. God bless.

Oct 17, 2016 = > This talk is eye-opening and heart-breaking. Yolanda Schlabach shows the reality of sex-trafficking in the State of Delaware, a terribly unrecognized and under-prosecuted state of affairs. She guides us through the process by which girls are trapped, and eventually lose their independent identity.

Yolanda is a Registered Nurse. She earned a Bachelor's Degree in Organizational Leadership and Management from Regent University in 2004 and graduated in 2014 from Liberty University with a Master's in Human Services & Counseling.

Yolanda attended the University of Maryland, earning a Certificate in Working with Survivors of Violence, Trauma and Torture. Yolanda is a member of Delaware's Human Trafficking Coordinating Council and Co-Chair of the Victim Services Committee.

Yolanda has served as Executive Director of Zoë Ministries, Inc. since 2012, when the organization received 501©3 status. For the past few years, she has spent her time engaged in public awareness and professional education to bring the reality of human trafficking to the forefront in Delaware.

45) The blood of Jesus removes you from sin's power, sin's effects, sin's sting, sin's reminder, and sin's mark.

Sep 4, 2016 => Hebrews 10: The blood of Jesus removes you from sin, the stain of sin, the sting of sin, the effects of sin, the reminder of sin, the mark of sin and even the action of sin. If I live righteous conscience it will produce fruit to holiness without me trying to be Holy.

If I just believe that God sees me as right in HIS sight the automatic affect produces a Holiness in my life without me trying to be holy. Sure sounds like grace to me. I bet God gets all the glory!

We study fallen man and say this is who we are instead of studying Jesus and say this is who we are.

Colossians 1:21 And you, who once were alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now ²² HE has reconciled us in the body of HIS flesh through death, to present you Holy, and Blameless, and above reproach in HIS sight — ²³ if indeed you continue in the faith, grounded and steadfast, and are not moved away from the hope of the Gospel which you heard, The truth ID most of us has not heard about this HOPE. All we have heard is that we are always going to fail.

No matter what he did we believe we are still sinners saved by grace? The Bible does not teach this anywhere, it teaches reckon yourselves dead to sin. It teaches that HE bore my sin in HIS body on a tree, so that we having died to sin might live for righteousness.

We need to understand what it means to die to sin, its memory, its stain, its desire and its pull. That we can absolutely live free from sin.

Not that you live in perfection and never commit a sin; it is living free from its identity, the detriment, the stain and the effects of sin.

If your heart is pure to live that way and you stumble into something you will immediately run to God as a son (or a daughter) and leap onto HIS lap and thank HIM for righteousness and the washing of the Blood, You will separate yourself from that thing and through communion with God you will be wiser, shaper, stronger and more complete than ever before; why? Because it is the power of righteousness. The word righteousness means you can stand before God without guilt, shame or condemnation.

The work of righteousness is any expression of God's nature through our lives. We are THE Righteousness Tree the planting of the Lord that HE might be glorified. You know a Tree by its Fruits, guess what righteousness trees produce?

You squeeze an orange – you get orange juice.

You squeeze an apple – you get apple juice.

You squeeze a Christion – you get “What?”

Everything but a Christian, well anyway squeezing most of the Christians.

Righteousness; the nature of God expressed. The Christ in you is the hope of Glory. The word Glory simply means any manifest made seen attribute of God is the glory of God revealed.

The Christ in me is the hope of making God seen and known to others.

The goal of the New Covenant is to get us out of the identity of sin.

No, I don't think I am perfect, God sees me that way and it brings out the Best in me.

Grace is different from mercy. Grace is God's power on my behalf to become like Him. Mercy is afforded by the heart of God to give me a change when I deserve none. When I receive that mercy it ushers me into the Dispensation of Grace and all of a sudden I am saved by Grace through faith and God's edging tool of Grace begins to make me more like HIM as I begin to yield to HIM and the Potter has HIS way.

If you preach grace apart from transformation you preach perversion. I did not find a way to sin and get away with it, I found a way to be free. Grace is not an empowerment to stay the same, God's Grace is a guarantee to change (ME).

56) Human Trafficking in the United States - Balance to Maintain

Jul 31, 2015 = > The US Department of Justice, the Coast Guard and other branches of the Federal government realized that slavery and human trafficking was becoming an enormous problem.

Human trafficking is the modern form of slavery, with illegal smuggling and trading of people, for forced labor or sexual exploitation.

Trafficking is officially defined as the recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, or receipt of persons by means of coercion, abduction, fraud, deception, or abuse of power of a position of vulnerability for the purpose of exploitation. Human trafficking is not synonymous with forced migration or smuggling.

In the U.S., human trafficking tends to occur around international travel-hubs with large immigrant populations, notably California and Texas. The U.S. Justice Department estimates that 17,500 people are trafficked into the country every year, but the true figure could be higher, because of the large numbers of undocumented immigrants. Those being trafficked include young children, teenagers, men and women and can be domestic citizens or foreign nationals. According to the Department of State's statistics from 2000, there are approximately 244,000 American children and youth that are at risk for sex trafficking each year. Of these children and youth, 38,600 were originally runaways.

Under Federal law, it is a crime to make people work by use of force, coercion, or fear.

Jan 17, 2015 => "There are children throughout the United States who are being sold as prostitutes," said FBI special agent Mike Beaver. "It's not uncommon to see 12- and 13-year-olds out. What we've learned is if you have adult prostitution in an area, there's probably child prostitution occurring as well. So it's more of a black market; it's more underground, but it's there."

The FBI estimates that currently there are 100,000 minors in America being forced to trade sex for money. Pimps target the most trusting or vulnerable teens to fill out their stable of working girls, often ignoring their ages.

"Primetime" cameras gained exclusive access to the story of two young victims. Teen cousins Carol, 14, and Kimberly, 15, were on their way to buy milkshakes when they were kidnapped on Toledo, Ohio's, Main Street and forced into a world that demanded sex with men for money.

Viewers will hear firsthand of the terrifying abduction, the militaristic training and period of seasoning, and eventually the dramatic rescue of one cousin and the terrifying journey to save the other. Federal and local authorities explain how these pimps operate loosely held networks, from typical residential communities to the nation's highways.

Watch interviews, 911 calls, interrogation videos, and a truck-stop sting operation as "Primetime" examines the unimaginable world of domestic sex trafficking

We have schools in our Tri-County area that just closed because in Klum they built a new school. We think we can convert class rooms into living quarters for young boys or young girls, or for mostly young women rebuilding their lives from the sex slavery trade or from trafficking. Jan 25, 2015 => January is National Human Trafficking Awareness Month. Globally, 20.9 million individuals are trafficked globally, and in the United States, it is estimated 100,000 children are trafficked. This panel will cover how Muslim American communities are impacted by human trafficking. Direct services providers, researchers, and advocates will discuss cases, current definitions, taboos, and barriers that survivors in the Muslim American community face. You don't want to miss this!

Panelists => Darakshan Raja, Moderator => Darakshan currently works as the Program Manager at the Washington Peace Center. Previously she worked at the Urban Institute and evaluated the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act's (TVPRA) impact on investigations and prosecutions for human trafficking cases.

Ilana Alazzeh, Panelist => Ilana works as a Producer, video-editor and writer for the Service Employees International Union. She is a radical interfaith feminist multiracial Muslim involved with Occupy, founder of Muslims Against Homophobia and LGBT Hate, Immigrant Stories and Ask an American Muslim.

Maryam Al-Zoubi, Panelist => Maryam has been working on issues surrounding human trafficking, gender based violence, and Muslim communities for many years. She holds a Masters degree from the University of Chicago in Social Service Administration where she completed fieldwork at the Chicago Alliance Against Sexual Exploitation and at Apna Ghar Inc (a domestic violence agency geared towards working with immigrant women). Her research involves Muslim communities' reactions to gender based violence and solutions moving forward. She is currently pursuing a law degree at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill as a Chancellor's Scholar.

Fahmida Azad, Panelist => Fahmida worked with Polaris Project on their national human trafficking hotline, and worked on cases of trafficking. She served as a bilingual national crisis hotline call specialist connecting potential victims of sex trafficking or labor trafficking with appropriate resources in addition to providing crisis assistance.

She provided assessments and engaging with the general public, service providers and with law enforcement officials to answer questions, take tips on suspicious situations indicating a potential human trafficking situation and providing safety planning information.

Theodora Ranelli, Panelist => Theodora is a Peer Interpersonal Violence Advocate with Project Hajra, partnered with CONNECT-NYC. Project Hajra is a grassroots initiative working to end violence through community-based methods in NYC Muslim communities. Theodora is a graduate of the Evergreen State College, focusing in Comparative Religion and Psychology.

May 7, 2015 => Subscribe For More Amazing Videos !!

Prostitution in the United States is illegal, except in some rural counties of the state of Nevada. Prostitution, however, is present in most parts of the country, in various forms.

The regulation of prostitution in the United States is not among the enumerated powers of the federal government. Under the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, it is therefore exclusively the domain of the states to permit, prohibit, or otherwise regulate commercial sex, except insofar as Congress may regulate it as part of interstate commerce with laws like the Mann Act. In most states, prostitution is considered a misdemeanor in the category of public order crime, a crime that disrupts the order of a community. It was at one time considered to be a vagrancy crime.

Currently, Nevada is the only state to allow legal prostitution - in the form of regulated brothels - the terms of which are stipulated in the Nevada Revised Statutes. Only 8 counties currently contain active brothels. All forms of prostitution are illegal in Clark County (which contains the Las Vegas–Paradise metropolitan area), Washoe County (which contains Reno), Carson City, Douglas County, and Lincoln County.

The other counties theoretically allow brothel prostitution, but some of these counties currently have no active brothels. Street prostitution, "pandering," and living off of the proceeds of a prostitute remain illegal under Nevada law, as elsewhere in the country.

As with other countries, prostitution in the United States can be divided into three broad categories: street prostitution, brothel prostitution, and escort prostitution.

79) What Can the U.S. Government and American Companies Do to End Human Trafficking?

Dec 12, 2013 => Human Rights Summit 2013

What Can the U.S. Government and American Companies Do to End Human Trafficking? Last year, an estimated 27 million people — the majority of them women and girls — were forced into modern slavery, compelled to provide labor or commercial sex acts by force, fraud, or coercion. Human trafficking is a $31 billion a year business, the second largest criminal enterprise in the world. Traffickers operate with almost complete impunity: only one trafficker is convicted for every 6,369 victims.

As a source, transit, and destination country for victims, what is the United States doing to address this massive violation of human rights? With consumers demanding greater transparency about the production of goods and work practices, how can American companies ensure that they are not complicit in this crime — and how can they be part of the solution?

And, as the majority of trafficking victims are women and girls, how can strategies proven to empower women be brought to bear in tackling this global injustice?

Panelists: = > Letty Ashworth- General Manager of Global Diversity, Delta Airlines

Ambassador Mark Lagon- Global Politics and Security Chair at the Master of Science in Foreign Service Program at Georgetown University, former Executive Director and CEO of the Polaris Project, former U.S. ambassador-at-large and director of the Office to Monitor and Combat Trafficking in Persons at the U.S. Department of State

80) Trafficking of Children in the United States: Documentary Film

Jun 30, 2012 = > Trafficking of children is a form of human trafficking and is defined as the "recruitment, transportation, transfer, harboring, and/or receipt" of a child for the purpose of exploitation.

Though statistics regarding the magnitude of child trafficking are difficult to obtain, the International Labor Organization estimates that 1.2 million children are trafficked each year.

The trafficking of children has been internationally recognized as a major human rights violation, one that exists in every region of the world. Yet, it is only within the past decade that the prevalence and ramifications of this practice have risen to international prominence, due to a dramatic increase in research and public action. A variety of potential solutions have accordingly been suggested and implemented, which can be categorized as four types of action: broad protection, prevention, law enforcement, and victim assistance. Major international documents regarding child trafficking include the 1989 U.N. Convention on the Rights of the Child, the 1999 I.L.O. Worst Forms of Child Labor Convention, and the 2000 U.N. Protocol to Prevent, Suppress and Punish Trafficking in Persons, especially Women and Children.

Commercial sexual exploitation of children (CSEC) constitutes a form of coercion and violence against children and amounts to forced labor and a contemporary form of slavery.

A declaration of the World Congress against Commercial Sexual Exploitation of Children, held in Stockholm in 1996, defined CSEC as: 'sexual abuse by the adult and remuneration in cash or kind to the child or a third person or persons. The child is treated as a sexual object and as a commercial object.'

CSEC includes the prostitution of children, child pornography, child sex tourism and other forms of transactional sex where a child engages in sexual activities to have key needs fulfilled, such as food, shelter or access to education. It includes forms of transactional sex where the sexual abuse of children is not stopped or reported by household members, due to benefits derived by the household from the perpetrator.

CSEC also potentially includes arranged marriages involving children under the age of 18 years, where the child has not freely consented to marriage and where the child is sexually abused.

Prostitution of children under the age of 18 years, child pornography and the (often related) sale and trafficking of children are often considered to be crimes of violence against children. They are considered to be forms of economic exploitation akin to forced labor or slavery. Such children often suffer irreparable damage to their physical and mental health. They face early pregnancy and risk sexually transmitted diseases, particularly AIDS. They are often inadequately protected by the law and may be treated as criminals.

Child trafficking and CSEC sometimes overlap. On the one hand, children who are trafficked are often trafficked for the purposes of CSEC. However, not all trafficked children are trafficked for these purposes. Further, even if some of the children trafficked for other forms of work are subsequently sexually abused at work, this does not necessarily constitute CSEC.

On the other hand, according to the U.S. Trafficking Victims Protection Act of 2000, the definition of Severe Forms of Trafficking in Persons includes any commercial sex act performed by a person under the age of 18. This means that any minor who is commercially sexually exploited is defined as a trafficking victim, whether or not movement has taken place. CSEC is also part of, but distinct from, child abuse, or even child sexual abuse. Child rape, for example, will not usually constitute CSEC. Neither will domestic violence.

Although CSEC is considered as child labor, and indeed one of the worst forms of child labor, in terms of international conventions, in legislation, policy and programmatic terms, CSEC is often treated as a form of child abuse or a crime.

90) Combating Human Trafficking in the United States

Nov 13, 2014 = > This free, online event was held on May 25, 2011, and was convened by the Ash Center's Government Innovators Network. Visit the Government Innovators Network to view the slide presentations related to this event, for information on future webinars, and to explore innovations in government at www.innovations.harvard.edu.

Event description: The United States uses a four paradigm approach in combating human trafficking: prevention, protection, prosecution, and partnerships.

In addition to the U.S. federal law, the Trafficking Victims Protection Act (TVPA), states have also passed their own individual state laws to address human trafficking.

What is currently being done to respond to and combat trafficking in the United States? What is succeeding? What isn't? The panel tackled challenges and lessons learned in combating human trafficking from victim-centered, enforcement, and prevention perspectives.

This webinar was moderated by Jeff Gulati with panelists Kevin Koler, Sergeant Chris Bray, and Norma Ramos. This event was cosponsored by the Carr Center for Human Rights Policy, Harvard Kennedy School.

We have schools in our Tri-County area that just closed because in Klum they built a new school. We think we can convert class rooms into living quarters for young boys or young girls, or for mostly young women rebuilding their lives from the sex slavery trade or from trafficking. Apartment for them for six months or for two years to live in to re-build their lives. Some take longer to re-build their value than others. We think the monthly cost per person will be at $5,000 each for 25 people. Would you consider donating $1 per month for 25 people and pledge this (not give any funds yet but later) to this cause. Maybe could pledge a onetime donation to get the school into living condition with rooms divided and carpet on the floors, etc.? 93) Child Sex Trafficking on the Internet - "Selling the Girl Next Door" Documentary

Mar 19, 2012 => CNN's Amber Lyon Investigates Internet Child Sex Trafficking in America

Selling the Girl Next Door takes viewers into the world of underage American girls caught up in the violent sex trade. Thousands of girls under the age of 18 are ensnared into lives of prostitution annually, according to the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children.

Many are runaways or "throwaways" trapped in "the oldest profession" by pimps who sell them using modern sales and marketing techniques, including the online classified website Backpage.com.

In a statement dated December 28, 2011 Backpage.com said it is "committed to preventing those who are intent on misusing the site for illegal purposes." Click on the following link to read an up-to-date list of the safety measures backpage.com says it is taking <http://i.cdn.turner.com/cnn/2011/imag...>

In a year-long investigation, CNN correspondent Amber Lyon reveals the devastating realities of the business of underage sex -- speaking to a young teen runaway sold online from a Las Vegas hotel, the men that obsessively seek Internet sex connections, and women long into careers as sex workers who were trafficked as teens or children.

Along the way, Lyon interviews well-known brothel owner Dennis Hof. Hof's sex workers describe their own dark pasts and the frightening underworld of underage sex trafficking.

Lyon also goes undercover herself, posting an online ad, and taking calls from solicitors -- and Internet pimps -- to understand more about how girls are victimized by traffickers.

An interactive map on CNN.com shares Lyon's coast-to-coast journey -- from Maryland, Missouri, Tennessee and Nevada -- trailing runaways, finding their families, meeting sex workers, and visiting a "Johns' school" where convicted solicitors are forced to face the social and criminal consequences of their actions.

Bachard is an Author, Speaker and long time Human Rights Advocate. His journey opened his eyes to a thriving underground business right here in America. The commodity is Children and Women sold for pleasure. The idea has become accepted and the internet facilitates and even validates the business. He details just one of many stories that take place all across America in his latest book, "The Berlin Turnpike: A True Story of Human Trafficking in America." This is a true story of human trafficking in America as told through the testimony of a landmark federal trial which took place at the heart of one of the country's wealthiest states, Connecticut, over the course of eight days in 2007.

15 Ways You Can Help Fight Human Trafficking => Please Share with all your people.

Anyone can join in the fight against human trafficking. Here are just a few ideas to consider.

1. Learn the indicators of human trafficking so you can help identify a potential trafficking victim. Human trafficking awareness training is available for individuals, businesses, first responders, law enforcement, educators, and federal employees, among others.
2. If you are in the United States and believe someone may be a victim of human trafficking, report your suspicions to law enforcement by calling 911 or the 24-hour National Human Trafficking Resource Center line at 1-888-373-7888. Trafficking victims, including undocumented individuals, are eligible for services and immigration assistance.

3. Be a conscientious and informed consumer. Discover your slavery footprint, ask who picked your tomatoes or made your clothes, or check out the Department of Labor's List of Goods Produced by Child Labor or Forced Labor. Encourage companies to take steps to investigate and prevent human trafficking in their supply chains and publish the information for consumer awareness.
4. Volunteer and support anti-trafficking efforts and Lions Clubs in your community.
5. Meet with and/or write to your local, state, and federal government representatives to let them know you care about combating human trafficking, and ask what they are doing to address it.
6. Host an awareness event to watch and discuss films about human trafficking. For example, learn how modern slavery exists today; watch an investigative documentary about sex trafficking; or discover how human trafficking can affect global food supply chains. Also, check out CNN's Freedom Project for more stories on the different forms of human trafficking around the world.
7. Organize a fundraiser and donate the proceeds to an anti-trafficking organization.
8. Encourage your local schools to partner with students and include modern slavery in their curricula. As a parent, educator, or school administrator, be aware of how traffickers target school-aged children.
9. Be well-informed. Set up a web alert to receive current human trafficking news. Become familiar with public awareness materials available from the Department of Health and Human Services or the Department of Homeland Security.
10. Work with a local religious community or congregation to help stop trafficking by supporting a victim service provider or spreading awareness of human trafficking.
11. Businesses: Provide jobs, internships, skills training, and other opportunities to trafficking survivors.
12. Students: Take action on your campus. Join or establish a university club to raise awareness about human sex trafficking and initiate action throughout your local community.

Consider doing one of your research papers on a topic concerning human trafficking. Request that human trafficking be included in university curricula.

13. Health Care Providers: Learn how to identify the indicators of human trafficking and assist victims. With assistance from anti-trafficking organizations, extend low-cost or free services to human sex trafficking victims.

14. Journalists: The media plays an enormous role in shaping perceptions and guiding the public conversation about human trafficking. Here are some media best practices on how to effectively and responsibly report stories on human trafficking.
15. Attorneys: Offer human trafficking victims legal services, including support for those seeking benefits or special visas. Resources are available for attorneys representing victims of human trafficking.
